Greenbush Remembered:
Stories Untold

By Nino Amato

Raconteur and Greenbush native

Greenbush has been called "Madison's Ellis Island." and was once Madison's most diverse neighborhood. A large group of immigrants came to Madison from a village outside of Palermo, Sicily. Stone cutters helped build the state capitol. Come listen to the stories of Greenbush told by someone blessed to have grown up in that neighborhood. Nino will share his interviews from Greenbush neighbors and residents, insights from his family diaries, journals and letters from his grandparents. And his vivid memories of historic events and Greenbush residents reactions. Nino grew-up working in his parent's famous Italian Supper Club, "Amato's Holiday House". He is an adjunct UW professor and been engaged in community and state politics for 40+ years.
